

Research Institute of Environmental Law at Wuhan University School of Law and Hainan University Law School

International Workshop on
The Polluter Pays Principle in Climate Change Mitigation Law

Thursday 24 - Saturday 26 October 2019

Workshop Hotel: New Yantai Hotel (新燕泰大酒店), 18 Wudong Road, Haidan Island, Haikou, 570208, Hainan, China

Workshop Venue: Room 717, Hainan University Law School (about 2km from hotel)

Program

Note: The workshop's format is a series of plenary round-table sessions for the review of submitted papers. The papers (fully developed, and prepared in accordance with the stylistic and content guidelines to be issued by the organizers) are due on Thursday 10 October, although earlier submission is encouraged. They will be circulated, in confidence, within the group. Each workshop session will consist of 15 minutes of presentation and 30 minutes of peer review. Additional peer review, in writing, may be emailed to authors prior to, or immediately after, the workshop. Participants are expected to attend all sessions and contribute to the peer-review process. To this end, everyone is invited to read all papers.

DAY 1: Thursday 24 October:

6:30-8:00 pm Welcoming dinner

DAY 2: Friday 25 October:

8:30 am Transfer bus to university

9:00-9:20 Introduction and process: Professor Alexander Zahar

9:20-10:05 am Session 1: Professor Michael Faure, Maastricht University: "The Polluter Pays Principle in Climate Change Law: An Economic Appraisal" (with Dirk Heine, World Bank—not attending)

10:05-10:30 am Tea/Coffee break

10:30-11:15 am Session 2: Professor Benoit Mayer, The Chinese University of Hong Kong: "The Limits of International Cooperation: An Argument Against Integrating the Polluter Pays Principle in International Climate Law"

11:15 am-12:00 pm Session 3: Professor Alena Kodolova, Russian Academy of Sciences, and Professor Alexander Solntsev, Peoples' Friendship University of Russia (RUDN University): "Application of the Polluter Pays Principle in the Russian Climate Change Legislation: Problems and Prospects"

12 pm-1:30 pm Lunch

- 1:30-2:15 pm      Session 4: Professor Paul Barresi, Southern New Hampshire University: “Implications for Domestic and International Climate Change Mitigation Law and Regulation of How Institutions and Culture Have Shaped Implementation of the Polluter Pays Principle Through Environmental Law in China, India, and the United States”
- 2:15-3:00 pm      Session 5: Dr Rowena Cantley-Smith, University of Technology, Sydney, and Professor Raphael Heffron, University of Dundee: “Energy Justice in Climate Change Mitigation: Promoting the Polluter Pays Principle in Sustainable Energy Market Transitions”
- 3:00-3:30 pm      Tea/Coffee break
- 3:30-4:15 pm      Session 6: Tian Shiyu, PhD Candidate, Renmin University: “The Applicability of the Polluter Pays Principle in the Climate Regime: A Reinterpretation from a Climate Justice Perspective”
- 4:15-5:00 pm      Professor Javier de Cendra de Larragán, IE University Madrid: “From the Polluter Pays Principle to Corporate-Driven Sustainability: A Paradigm Change in the Regulation of Corporations for Sustainability?”
- 5:00-5:20 pm      Plenary: Closing remarks, recap of scope and content of papers, and agreement on manuscript finalization process and deadlines
- 5:20 pm              Transfer bus to hotel
- 6:30-8:00 pm      Dinner

DAY 3: Saturday 26 October:

Daytime              Excursion to wetland area in Hainan Island

* * *

Papers to be submitted to Climate Law’s special issue for regular peer review:

- Professor Daniel H. Cole, IU Maurer School of Law: “Applying a Polluter Pays Principle in International Climate Law: Ex ante Carbon Taxes v. ex post Liability”
- Professor Nicolas de Sadeleer, Université Saint-Louis: “State Aid for Projects to Mitigate Climate Change in Light of the Polluter Pays Principle”
- Professor Kevin B. Jones, Vermont Law School (with Ben Civiletti and Angela Sicker): “Carbon Pricing in US Electricity Markets: Expediting the Low-Carbon Transition while Mitigating the Growing Conflict between Renewable Goals and Regional Electricity Markets”
- Professor Suzanne Kingston and Dr Andrew Jackson, University College Dublin: “The Polluter Pays Principle in EU Climate Litigation: An Effective Tool Before the Courts?”
- Dr Thomas Leclerc, Sciences Po Bordeaux: “A Sectorial Application of the Polluter Pays Principle: Lessons Learned from the Aviation Sector”
- Professor Marjan Peeters, Maastricht University and Wuhan University: “Towards a Transparent and Trustworthy Voluntary Fulfilment of the Polluter Pays Principle: A Case Study on Offsetting Aviation Emissions”
- Dr Shen Ying, Universität Duisburg-Essen: “The Relationship between the Polluter Pays Principle and the Paris Agreement’s Article 6 Mechanisms”